

SPoKE 2021

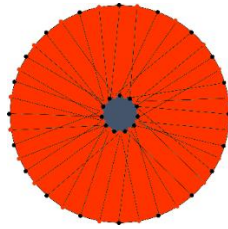

Horseboy Foundation Prize

The Horseboy Foundation has offered a special prize worth £200 for the film submitted to this year's competition which most thoughtfully reflects either on an artist with special needs or an artwork that is concerned with the issue directly related to special needs. The award of this prize will be judged by the panel.

The Horseboy Foundation was created by one of SPoKE's judges, Rupert Isaacson, as a charity devoted to providing alternative and kinetic education to special needs and autistic as well as neuro-typical students. Its methods are used in centres across the US and Europe.

It is possible that the winner of this prize could also be shortlisted for the other prizes and places. To be eligible please provide the panel with the required information in the Declaration form on the following page.
